

Kære DKUUG-Nyt læser

I dette nummer har vi indsat to foldere på midtersiden, som er lige til at rive ud og gemme. Folderne handler om fri software og softwarepatenter.

Midtersiderne skal tages ud af bladet, klippes midt over og hver af de resulterende A4-sider skal så foldes på midten, og derved danne de to foldere.

Go' fornøjelse.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million (19.5% of the population).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better: A Strategy for the 21st Century (Department of Health 1999). This strategy is based on the following principles:

- Older people should be able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- Older people should be able to live in their own communities.
- Older people should be able to live in their own homes and communities for as long as possible.

These principles are underpinned by the following objectives (Department of Health 1999):

- To ensure that older people are able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own communities.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities for as long as possible.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key actions to be taken to achieve these objectives. These include:

- To ensure that older people are able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own communities.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities for as long as possible.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key actions to be taken to achieve these objectives. These include:

- To ensure that older people are able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own communities.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities for as long as possible.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key actions to be taken to achieve these objectives. These include:

- To ensure that older people are able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own communities.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities for as long as possible.